

Library donations near $34,000 mark in September

The Cambridge Library Building fundraising campaign to match the Cambridge Foundation's challenge grant of $100,000 is near the $34,000 mark, in tallying of donations through September.

With the latest numbers, the total of gifts and pledges of support for the new library as an addition to the Amundson Center, now exceeds $1.36 million in the race to the $1.8 million goal in 2014. The Library Capital Campaign Committee has embarked on a major print, video and handout campaign to generate public interest.

The Cambridge Foundation contributed $100,000 to the effort on condition that the fundraisers match that amount in community support by next year in Phase Three of the decade-long campaign for a new library, triple the size of the tiny facility in the Amundson Center.

Other major gifts have come from the Madison Foundation, $50,000; the John T. Vuckurevich (Cambridge State Bank) Foundation; the Village of Cambridge, $400,000; Town of Oakland, $70,000; Town of Christiana, $54,000; Town of Deerfield, $10,000; Village of Rockdale, $10,000.
